The Application Period for Global Network Weeks and Courses Opens in November

Students can start to apply for Global Network Weeks and Courses in November. For a list of schools participating in the March 2017 Global Network Week and the options available please check the GNAM website. If a topic for a week is not listed yet, you may refer to previous weeks for reference. All topics will be posted by the end of November. A listing of online Global Network courses to be offered in the first half of 2017 will also be posted on the website. Some courses are already listed, and all available courses will be posted during the month of November. Students can check with their MBA Director or the office of international relations at their school in mid-November for information about how to apply.

FGV-EAESP, Renmin University of China Business School and Hitotsubashi ICS Lead in Student Participation in 2016 GNAM Leadership Survey

More than two thousand students from all 28 Global Network schools have responded to the 2016 Global Network Leadership survey, and more than one thousand alumni from 24 Global Network schools have responded.

Congratulations to FGV-EAESP, Renmin University of China School of Business and Hitotsubashi ICS for garnering student participation rates of 76%, 71% and 66%, respectively. Some schools expect to increase their participation rates for students and alumni this week, so the survey deadline has been extended until November 6, 2016. For students and alumni who have not yet taken the survey, please take the survey now and help increase the rate of participation from your school. Read about student experiences during the October Global Network Week on the News page of the GNAM website and Tumblr of the website.

Meet the GNAM Student Ambassadors

Nineteen schools have already appointed GNAM Student Ambassadors who will work with their school administrations, their home school student communities and student ambassadors at other GNAM schools to identify new opportunities and shape existing GNAM initiatives. With interests that include entrepreneurship, gastronomy, travel, tennis, soccer, martial arts, photography, dancing and music, sustainability and integrating people with disabilities in the workplace, the students represent a range of clubs in addition to their schools and countries. Call to GNAM Students and Faculty on LinkedIn

GNAM Faculty on LinkedIn are encouraged to join the GNAM Faculty LinkedIn group. Only faculty and staff affiliated with GNAM will be accepted into the group, which we hope will serve as a way to connect faculty with similar interests across the network.

Students, alumni, faculty and staff are all invited and encouraged to join the GNAM LinkedIn group.
